A Secret Weapon on the PGA Tour

QLink Impacting TOUR

FACT: On any given day, on any PGA Tour, some players have a hidden, powerful advantage over unknowing opponents.

BOTTOM LINE: Your weekend opponent may have that same advantage over you.

Currently, more than 200 touring professionals now sport a hidden secret weapon... the QLink pendant.

"This is the real thing. I put the QLink on a year ago and won immediately. I had not seen all the scientific research, so I took it off. After being stressed-tested both with and without it, I put it on again. Within 10 days I had won the U.S. Senior Open. It's not coming off again."

— Bruce Fleisher

David C. Rupley, Jr., MD, reviewed the PGA TOUR testing results and said, "I can tell you these results are highly unusual, even extraordinary." QLink uses FDA-registered stress assessment systems to demonstrate the immediate effectiveness of QLink technology in reducing and recovering from the effects of stress throughout the body.

QLink wearers have recently won more than 35 tournaments on the four

"I don't know why QLink works and I don't care. I do know that it is a boon to my game by helping me stay calm and focused. Since putting QLink on, I've consistently finished in the top ten."

— Allen Doyle

major tours. At least 15 of those were won by players within 5 to 10 days of first putting it on.

The Senior PGA now has 50 to 60 regular users. Tour rep Jerry Garrison says, "Player use of QLink has dramatically picked up since stress testing began. Guys are always looking for an edge. Many think QLink is a huge one!"

QLink has a policy of never paying players to use their product, yet many on the PGA and LPGA Tours do. A confirmed fact is the victories using QLinks in Senior majors by Bruce Fleisher and Allen Doyle.

According to the manufacturer, a major benefit, among many, is resis-

"The QLink's been wonderful for me. It's really helped me relax and focus much better on the golf course. I don't get nearly as uptight as I did before. All in all, it's a magical product."

— Tom Pernice Jr.

"Last week my mood was a heck of a lot better and I just felt like things didn't bother me as much. Whether it was the first week out on Tour or if it was the QLink that was working, I'm not sure. But I certainly felt calmer on the golf course and I felt a lot slower to get angry about stuff. And on the other side, I was a little slower to get super excited about things too, which is a good thing, to stay on an even keel. All in all, I felt good wearing it last week."

tance to stress plus much more. Users report effects including greater calm, more restful sleep, reduced anger and a heightened focus and concentration.

"The chief component of the zone is a lack of stress. Anything reducing stress will help you get there more often and stay longer. The QLink absolutely does that, down to a cellular level," explains QLink's Tod Sinding. "The great thing about this product is that it applies to anything you do in life... work, play, even sleep."

QLink comes in standard ($129) and sterling silver ($299). Considering the benefits, you'd be hard pressed to come up with a better value or more useful product. The company offers a 90-day, money back guarantee with a lifetime warranty.

"I've been wearing the QLink for just under a year now. I feel a little bit more relaxed, more energized, just more energy overall. And also, it looks pretty good around your neck. So I think it's all positive."
